New-York, to Jan. 4, 1859	27,501	43,212	6,651
Other Ports to latest dates	12,840	6,020	—

The business in Breadstuffs during the fortnight, Mr. Burt reviews, thus: "The speculative feeling which has existed here since last Fall, and controlled the market for Breadstuffs, is yet strong, and gives a firm tone to the trade. There is no doubt a serious defect in the last crop of Wheat, both as regards quality and quantity, and it is now generally conceded that there will be no great excess of Indian Corn; on this is based the speculation. Prices, in the meantime, are somewhat unsettled, and much diversity of opinion exists, as regards the stability of prices for the future. It is a remarkable feature in the trade that during the month ending on the 28th January, there was not a barrel of Flour, or a bushel of Grain cleared from the United States to Liverpool, and only 19 bbls. of Flour to London. On the fortnight, there has been a further advance of about 25c. @30c. ⅌ bbl. on Flour; at the close yesterday there was less doing, and prices rather favored the buyer. In Wheat, the transactions have been large, at steadily advancing rates; the city millers have purchased freely, but the principal sales have been on speculative account. The receipts are light, and the stock in store is held with firmness. Indian Corn of the old crop in store is mostly in the hands of speculative parties, who do not offer it freely. The new comes forward from the South slowly; the late advance has materially checked the trade for local purposes, and for a day or two past prices have been somewhat easier."

HIDES—Are in demand at uniform quotations.

NAVAL STORES—Turpentine is in demand, including Crude at 62 75 @ 250 bbl., Spirits at 49½c. @50c. ⅌ gallon. Stock estimated at 6,000 bbls. Crude, and 6,700 bbls. Spirits. Tar is scarce and wanted, steady at $2 37½ @ $2 50 ⅌ bbl. Rosin is in reduced supply and good demand at full prices. The week's sales of Rosin, according to Messrs. Bassett & Brooks, have been as follows: 1,000 bbls. common, at $1 75, about (to arrive); 4,000 do., on the spot, at $1 77½ @ $1 80, principally at the latter rate; 700 strained do., at $1 85; 300 bbls. No. 2, at $2 25; 500 do., at $2 50; 600 low No. 1, at $3; 300 do., at $3 25; 600 good do., at $4; 200 do., at $4 25; 750 at $5, and 400 at $6.

AMUSEMENTS.

MR. WOODWORTH'S
EVENINGS WITH SHERIDAN,
THIS EVENING—THE RIVALS.

Mr. Geo. Vandenhoff's Evenings with Sheridan.—The Rivals of Sheridan's love, disappointed and mortified, by the jealousy in unchecked jealousy, and the comedy, finally, as usual, by Mr. Vandenhoff, says the jealousy in unchecked jealousy. Sir Anthony, Mrs. Malaprop, Bob Acres, Mr. Vandenhoff, even in this character, was happily, probably before our eyes. The great variety of voice, manner, and character, that Mr. Vandenhoff brings into play, for every character, and every scene, is most remarkable. The merits of Octoroon celebrated Rice, slightly altered, to may be described in several, slightly gentlemanly voices and [illegible].

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship Kangaroo, from Liverpool on the 19th ult., with four days' later news from Europe, is now about due at this port. She had not been seen at Sandy Hook at the time of going to press.

The attention of Congress, yesterday, centred in a few measures of importance, and the proceedings were interesting. In the Senate, a resolution for the relief of Commodore PAULDING, was offered by Mr. SEWARD, and referred. The bill donating lands to agricultural colleges was then taken from the preference over prior orders, on motion of Mr. WADE, of Ohio, and discussed until the adjournment. In the House, the vote by which the Homestead bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole was reconsidered, and it was passed, after an ineffectual effort to table it, by a vote of 120 against 76. It provides that any person, the head of a family, and duly qualified as a citizen, shall be entitled to enter upon a quarter section of any unappropriated land, and hold the same for actual settlement and cultivation. The Senate French Spoliation bill was then taken up, and Mr. BRIGHT[illegible], after a few remarks, moved the previous question. A point of order was raised that, as the bill appropriated money, it must be discussed in Committee of the Whole. The Speaker decided the point well taken, and an appeal from his decision was tabled. So the bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole. The House soon after adjourned.

Secretary COBB, having received the revenue receipts for the month of January, for which he has been waiting, will make answer probably by to-morrow to the House resolution, calling for his opinion as to the sufficiency of the revenue under the present Tariff system to meet the expenses of the Government. He is understood to be decidedly of the opinion that it will be insufficient, and that either an increase of the Tariff rates on certain articles must be made, or that resort must be had to another large loan. This statement relative to the views of the Secretary is in direct contradiction of the reports which have been circulated, that he is opposed to any interference with the provisions of the present Tariff.

A caucus of the Democratic members of the House opposed to protection and specific duties was held last night, to consider and take action on the Tariff question. The caucus was principally composed of Southern members, though several Northern Democrats were present, and JOHN COCHRANE presided. A great diversity of opinion existed as to the proper method of meeting the present pressing emergencies of the Government, but a very general impression prevailed that the estimates were altogether too high, and that measures must be taken to reduce them very materially. Resolutions were finally adopted which declare against any modification of the present tariff, and call for a reduction in the expenditures, and the caucus adjourned until Saturday night, when a general call is to be issued to the Democratic members, and the question of adjournment is to be debated.

Nothing of special importance occurred in the Legislature yesterday. In the Senate, a bill was introduced providing for reports every year from the Governor of the number of pardons granted, with all the documents in each case, and also the number of applications for pardons refused. Another bill introduced vests in the City of New-York the title to the land at the Fifteenth-avenue, between Fortieth and Thirty-first streets. In the Assembly the bill to repeal the law distributing parties to suits to be witnesses was concurred in. Considerable of the Whole, and after an extended discussion, the enacting clause was stricken out on an emphatic vote, thus killing the bill. The bill to allow building associations in Kings County was defeated, and amended so as to include Richmond County. The bill extending the provisions of the Exemption law was also defeated, but no action was taken.

The New-York State Anti-Slavery Convention met at Albany yesterday. The attendance was not very large. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. PHILLIPS, WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON and others of the great guns of the party, in support of the doctrine of State independence, and in advocacy of disunion; and a series of resolutions were discussed, and finally adopted, which denounce the Union as "a covenant with Death" and "an agreement with Hell."

The New-York State Medical Society met at Albany yesterday, it being the fifty-second annual meeting. Among other business transacted, a Committee was appointed to ascertain and report some method calculated to insure more general vaccination throughout the State as a precaution against smallpox.

We have no further advices from the seat of war in Mexico, nor intelligence from several other points of the Island of Cuba. Business is universally suspended. The embargo upon the export trade has contributed to this result; while the general anxiety as to the result of the contest was the principal cause of the panic. A large body of troops is said to have advanced under a commander whose name is wanting, from Aux Cayes to the relief of the Emperor. The inhabitants of that vicinity are reported as favoring the revolution. Affairs were quiet at Gonaives and at Cape Haytien. An Imperial vessel-of-war had commenced the bombardment of the fort of St. Marc, in the former place, but at too long range to inflict damage. A slight skirmish had also occurred in the same vicinity. The scope of the news continues that already received, indicating the probable overthrow of Soulouque.

Latest advices from Northern Mexico state that Governor GARZA was preparing to march from Tamaulipas to the assistance of the Liberals. The number of troops under his command is not stated.

The marine issues for January, comprising partial returns by vessels and cargo, as well as total losses, are estimated at one million, six hundred and thirteen thousand, five hundred dollars. Among the heaviest of these losses are those of the clipper flying Fish and Robert Henderson, which went ashore with teas in China; the British ship Norval, abandoned on fire; the bark Oakland, struck by lightning; the Onward, foundered off Cape of Good Hope, and the Rathback, ashore in Penang Bay, which alone amounts to over six hundred thousand dollars.

The whole number of steamers upon the Pacific, engaged in ocean and river navigation which have been officially inspected by the Supervising Inspectors of the Fourth District, is 43, comprising an aggregate of 24,426 tons. A list of their names and tonnage and a statement of their condition, is published in another column.

A negro named Hoosiane, with his wife and three of his children, were burnt to death in his house on the outskirts of Allegheny City, Penn., on Monday night. The house took fire [illegible] and the female [illegible] to save the lives of her children [illegible] the house [illegible] was burned down [illegible] the Coroner's office.

Before the Board of Aldermen yesterday, the annual report of the City Chamberlain was submitted and received. The Comptroller and County Officers were [illegible] with the City Chamberlain as to the propriety of enclosing the Hall of Records, and preparing for property damaged by the City in Chatham-street, for the purpose of renting a portion of the premises. A communication was received from the trustees of the Shooters Guard asking for the Corporation's patronage. A [illegible] was received from the Comptroller setting forth that much confusion had resulted from the intermingling of the City and County financial affairs, and stating that he had directed that the accounts should be kept separately hereafter. The Board concurred [illegible] the Coroners' offices.

At the meeting of the Board of Governors, yesterday, it was decided to open a quarry south of the Lunatic Asylum, from which to obtain stone for the erection of the wing which is to be added to that institution. Dr. BRUNNINGHAUSEN was authorized a resolution directing the exclusion of Sensing hereafter from Bellevue Hospital, at the hours of prostitution, and of performing surgical operations. It was referred to the Committee on Bellevue Hospital, and will probably be carried into effect.

A member of the gang known as the "Hammersley-street Gang," named MIKE O'BRIEN, was shot accidentally last evening by a German butcher named FORM, at his shop, No. 202 Varick-street. O'BRIEN, in company with two other members of the same gang, entered the shop, and helped themselves from a keg of pickled salmon. FORM asked them for pay, when they commenced to abuse him, and one of them attempted to rob the money-drawer. FORM then attempted to eject them from the premises, but they attacked him in concert, and he found it impossible. He then seized a loaded gun which he had behind the counter, and attempted to intimidate them, but they seized hold of it, and in the struggle for its possession it was discharged, the load taking effect in O'BRIEN's side, inflicting a wound which it is thought will result fatally. O'BRIEN's companions then fled, and FORM was taken into custody.

A very remarkable case yesterday demanded the attention of one of the Coroners. At an early hour in the morning a woman was found lying nearly dead on the pavement in Vandewater-street. She proved to be the wife of a printer, and from the proofs found upon her, one of three things was deemed certain—that she had been thrown out of the window of her room, the room being on the third floor; that she had thrown herself out, or that she had fallen out accidentally. There was evidence going to show the possibility of her having come to her death in either of the ways named. The Jury, in their verdict, however, attributed the death to accident.

A meeting of the Brooklyn Board of Education was held yesterday, at which a communication, signed by fifty persons, was presented, preferring charges, based upon rumors, against Ex-Alderman CLARK, Principal of Public School No. 13. Mr. CLARK is accused of conniving with some unknown person to make (in a surreptitious manner) between sixty and seventy pupils of Public School No. 13, members of the Mercantile Library Association, so that they could vote the "regular" ticket at the late election. The matter was referred to a Special Committee for investigation.

The General Markets yesterday were inactive for Cotton and Breadstuffs. Groceries were in demand. Provisions were less freely dealt in. A fair inquiry prevailed for Naval Stores, Oils, Tobacco, Whisky and Leather. Freights were less active.

The Belly Grant and French Intrigues in Central America.

The Arabia's advices show that steady progress is making in the organization of the Company for the construction of a ship canal across the Isthmus under the Belly grant. We cannot help thinking that this matter receives, at the hands of our people as well as Government, far less attention than it deserves. As we stated in a recent article upon this subject, only two grants have ever been made by the Governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica of this nature;—the first was to American citizens, and the second was to M. BELLY and his associates. If the Governments of the Isthmus are permitted to repudiate the first of these engagements, the latter will become valid, and the control of the Isthmus transit may pass into the hands of a French company, backed by the French Government, and sustained by the active intervention of French frigates in those waters.

It has been too hastily assumed by our people, and too rashly credited by our Government, that this French project was conceived by M. BELLY alone, and that it has been prosecuted solely and exclusively as a private undertaking. We have very substantial reasons, based upon the perusal of unpublished documents, for believing this to be a very great mistake. We have no doubt it will finally appear that the scheme originated with M. MARCOLETA, formerly Minister of Nicaragua to the United States;—and that it was intended by him as a means of avenging himself upon the Government and the people of this country for personal slights received at their hands. It will be remembered doubtless that the Government of Nicaragua was requested by Mr. WEBSTER, then Secretary of State, to recall their Minister, on the ground that he had been guilty of conduct unbecoming both a Minister and a gentleman. The Government of Nicaragua, in reply to Mr. WEBSTER's communication, desired to know the specific grounds on which the removal was requested, that it might determine for itself whether the requirement of removal should be complied with or not. When this reply reached the Government of the United States, Mr. EDWARD EVERETT was filling the place made vacant by the death of Mr. WEBSTER. Mr. EVERETT informed the Government of Nicaragua that it was quite sufficient for them to know that the presence of Mr. MARCOLETA, as Minister, was objectionable here, and that this Government was not bound to furnish reasons therefor. All further diplomatic intercourse was then refused to Mr. MARCOLETA. He was not recalled, but was appointed to France, England, and Europe generally, and left for Paris to fulfill the purposes of his mission, threatening vengeance against the United States, its institutions and people, and the American Atlantic and Pacific Ship Canal Company in particular. He boasts that he would be heard of again in this country were open and frequent, and couched in language always offensive.

This gentleman was an old acquaintance and personal friend of Louis NAPOLEON. They became known to each other when the present Emperor was an exile from France, and MARCOLETA was a refugee from Spain, because of his complicity in the Spanish revolution, during which period he acted as clerk to a Colonel in the army of Don CARLOS. When NAPOLEON became Emperor, and MARCOLETA a Minister to his Court, without salary, or even the hope of it, NAPOLEON III. settled upon him an annual pension, on which, since his advent to Paris, he has been living, and still lives.

It will be observed, that M. MARCOLETA had a double inducement to interfere prejudicially to the interests of citizens of the United States in a transit franchise across the Isthmus of Nicaragua, in the hostility which he felt against the Government of the United States in imposing upon him a public disgrace, and in the annual stipend which was furnished him by the Emperor of the French. We have reliable evidence for saying that he had repeated consultations with the Emperor as to the best mode of preventing citizens of this country from opening and establishing the Nicaragua transit. He pictured the grasping disposition of the Yankees—declared their object to be the annexation of the Central American states, and the extension of the area of slavery—that the American Eagle was about to perch upon the Palms of the Andes—that the American Flag was about to wave over the Cordilleras—that the American Union was about to be extended to embrace the Isthmian states, and that the Emperor of the French could do no less than interpose his sword to prevent the consummation of such a consummation. The sympathies of the Emperor, and this advantage he followed up by proposing to M. BELLY to secure the cooperation of some French Banking firm of notoriety, and then to make an application to the Governments of Costa Rica and Nicaragua for a grant, which he, MARCOLETA, would cause to be made to them. Months before M. BELLY left for Central America, MARCOLETA wrote to his Government and that of Costa Rica urging upon them an immediate compliance with the proposition of BELLY, as the sure and only means of preventing American population, the spread of American influence in and their absorption of the Isthmian powers. So delighted was the man with his achievement that he could not retain the gratification he felt at having, as he supposed, eradicated all American interests from Nicaragua. He wrote to divers persons here in his confidence, boasting of his success in being revenged upon the American Government and people—that the French Emperor had heartily entered into his plans—and that hereafter Nicaragua and Costa Rica could repose with confidence upon French protection against American aggression. From all this it follows that MARCOLETA has, upon repeated occasions, uttered and written what is willfully false, with the intention to deceive his Government and his friends, or that M. BELLY, in his mission to Central America, was the protégé of NAPOLEON, and acted, if not under his advice, at least with his knowledge, concurrence, approbation and pledge of protection. That the latter is true there is little room for doubt, in view of other facts in the case.

When M. BELLY arrived at San Juan del Norte he learned that the Cass-Yrissari Treaty had been submitted to the Constituent Assembly of Nicaragua for their ratification. Well knowing that, should that treaty be ratified, there would be an end to his hopes of procuring a Canal contract, he immediately caused his arrival to be announced in the State paper of Nicaragua, El Centro Americano, of the 11th April, in the following terms:

"We announce the arrival of the distinguished publicist, Señor BELLY, who will leave immediately for the interior. His being a caballero and a Frenchman of such distinction causes us to conceive the most exalted hopes of a speedy change in these regions. You cannot believe the rejoicing which the arrival of M. BELLY has caused, nor fail to perceive that this is the first testimony of a French intervention of that nation so noble and generous, which, as the protector of the West, appears resolved no longer to tolerate, as in the name of civilization she has a right to do, that the Yankees shall so insolently break the social laws, even to the legalizing of fillibusterism, that execrable modern piracy which hardly would have raised its head in the dark ages."

This language, published in the only official State paper of Nicaragua, establishes three facts: First—That M. BELLY did not represent himself to be, or pretend to be, a private subject, soliciting a contract for the purposes of private gain. Second—That he was the representative, or quasi representative, of the French Government. Third—That he came to promise not only French intervention and protection in behalf of Nicaragua, but a protection and intervention adverse to the Government and people of the United States, and the rights which her citizens had previously acquired under and by virtue of a solemn contract.

But there is additional testimony on this point. On the 25th of March, 1858, the Cass-Yrissari Treaty was confirmed by the Constituent Assembly, and before the pompous and insulting announcement of the actual arrival of M. BELLY was made public. The day following, President MARTINEZ was waited upon by General LAMAR, the American Minister, and his Secretary of Legation, who tendered to him his congratulations, which the President accepted; a few days thereafter a special bearer of dispatches was appointed to go to the City of Washington, to whom President MARTINEZ delivered a packet of papers, telling him to hurry on as speedily as possible, as he bore with him the destinies of the State. Thus, General LAMAR and the bearer of dispatches both believed that the latter conveyed the ratified treaty to the United States Government. Both were, we will not say outwitted, but deceived. On the 4th April the following announcement was made in the State paper, El Centro Americano:

"The Treaty which was signed at Washington on the 5th November last by General CASS and Señor YRISSARI, was ratified by the constituent power on the 25th of March last, by a majority of 16 to 5. This business is of sufficient importance to occupy vividly the minds of the Nicaraguans. Every one understands that an entirely new era is opened to the country, for which it is necessary to prepare ourselves if we do not wish to remain very backward in the career of progress."

Now it must be remembered that the State paper was then and now is under the control of President MARTINEZ, and the announcement which we have quoted shows that after the ratification of the treaty he still approved of it, as he had before approved of it, by sending it to the Assembly for confirmation—and yet it was not returned to the United States Government. And why not? The arrival of M. BELLY had been ascertained, and the motives, powers and purposes with which he came had long before been communicated by M. MARCOLETA. Does any men believe that any mere private French tourist, clothed with no diplomatic powers, and wholly unauthorized to speak on the part of the French Government, could have stayed the hand of MARTINEZ from returning a ratified treaty to the United States, especially when it is considered that the Government of Nicaragua knew nothing and had heard but little of M. BELLY? Are Governments in the habit of being thus swayed? And yet the proof is abundant that to the persuasions of M. BELLY alone and his offers of French protection, are we indebted for the failure to return that treaty.

From San Juan del Norte, M. BELLY proceeded first to San Jose, in Costa Rica. Shortly after his arrival there, on the 11th April, a public dinner was given to General JEREZ, who was there with the Salvador Commissioner, Colonel MESSERES, to regulate the conditions of the boundary settlement between Nicaragua and Costa Rica. At this dinner M. BELLY was present, and made a speech, in which he employed the following language in speaking of the Cass-Yrissari Treaty, and its ratification by the Constituent Assembly:

"When I heard of the arrival here of the Nicaraguan Minister, (JEREZ,) I was filled with lively hopes; they were, however, a little embittered by the notice of an unfortunate act which arrived at the same date, (the ratification of the treaty.) Nevertheless, when a people seriously desires it, they can always erase from their annals an unfortunate page."

Is this the language and tone of a tourist? Who were the other speakers at this public dinner, as related with all the importance of large type in the Government paper, the Crestos de Costa Rica of the 14th April, 1858? They were the Minister of Relations of Costa Rica, Don NARCISO TORREA, General MARINO JEREZ, the Salvador Commissioner, Colonel MESSERES, and the President of Costa Rica. THE TIMES [illegible] April 19, [illegible] by all the [illegible] where they were [illegible] toasts were expended the lancing denunciations of Mora and MARTINEZ against the honor and good faith of the Government of the United States. Who believes that this insult to the United States was gratuitous on the part of Nicaragua, relying upon her own strength or that it was offered of the instigation of a mere private tourist, without diplomatic character? On the contrary, who does not know that no such insult would have been offered by Nicaragua and Costa Rica unless they felt themselves secure of the protection of France, England and Sardinia, which had been so invidiously promised to them by M. BELLY.

From the day when M. BELLY entered Nicaragua until the day of his departure he indulged in incessant denunciation and vituperation of the Government and people of the United States, and seemed to be satisfied with the grant of no privilege to himself unless it were given on the amusement or repudiation of some prior grant to citizens of this country. In all this he received the plaudits of the oligarchs of Central America, which culminated on the 23d April in the official announcement in the Centro Americano, that the Executive had insuperable objections to the Cass-Yrissari Treaty. Who and what influences caused this sudden change in the mind of the Government of Nicaragua?

After the return of M. BELLY to France, the columns of every newspaper to which he had access were made vocal with criminations of the United States Government, its fillibustering tendencies and its want of good faith, and the power of the French Government was invoked to intervene between this country and the absorption of Central America. The censorship which the Emperor exercises over the Press in France is well known, and violent denunciations of this country could not be so often repeated except with his tacit concurrence.

We have much more evidence to offer, positive as well as circumstantial, in support of our postulate that the Emperor of France has intervened in Central American affairs with a view to check the progress of American influence in that quarter of the world; but we forbear. Enough has already been offered to satisfy the doubts and the scruples of the most unbelieving. We alluded last week to the vested rights acquired by our own citizens long anterior to the contract of M. BELLY. If this Government, as it should do, insists on and maintains those rights, we have nothing to fear from French intervention. Whether the Government will or not employ the necessary means for this purpose in accordance with the Message of the President, and the manifesto of General CASS of 25th of July last, is yet to be learned, and we hope that decision will not come too late.

Dangerous Instruments of Protection.

The English papers, a few months ago, contained an account of a shocking accident, which had resulted from the employment of firearms by a timid gentleman as a protection against burglars. A clergyman of the established Church, whose parsonage was situated in a rural district, had been very much alarmed by reading accounts of burglaries committed in various places, and, as a means of security, he provided himself with a revolver. Sitting in his study late one night, he heard footsteps under his window, and, thinking there might be a burglar prowling around his house, he opened the door, and, to let the intruder know he was armed, he fired his revolver in the darkness without, and, hearing no more noise, he returned to his study. The next morning, the corpse of one of his friends and neighbors was found lying near his door with a bullet in his brain.

A very similar accident occurred in this City on Monday morning, the particulars of which were reported in full yesterday. A timid pawnbroker, hearing his basement window opened, jumps out of bed, seizes his revolver, and, throwing up his bedroom window, calls out to know "who's there." His servant-girl, who had risen at her usual hour, puts her head out of the basement window to see who was calling, when the pawnbroker, without waiting a moment to see who it is, fires off his revolver and puts two bullets into the neck of his luckless servant.

Of course there was no design to inflict any injury upon any one in either of these cases. But it would be hardly safe to bring in a verdict of nobody to blame. There is no law to prevent men from carrying weapons necessary for their defence about their persons, nor from keeping revolvers, or any other kind of firearms, in their houses to protect them against burglars. But every man should be held responsible for the harm he may do by the improper use of such instruments of destruction. It will never do to permit men in a tremor of alarm to fire off revolvers, killing and maiming their friends and the members of their household, without holding them responsible for the injuries they inflict. Timid and nervous people, who are so wholly lacking in self-possession as to fire pistols indiscriminately at anybody and anything when they are alarmed, are clearly not fit to be trusted with firearms for any purpose. Such a head of a family becomes a more dangerous and formidable person, with a revolver in his hand, than any burglar. He is liable at any time to shoot his wife or children, or even himself, in his paroxysms of fear, and, instead of a protector to his family, he is a person of whom they should be in constant terror. The shocking affair in Third-avenue should serve as a wholesome and timely warning to all timid gentlemen who keep firearms at the head of their beds not to use them until they are sure there is absolute necessity for them, or they may, like the unhappy pawnbroker, be horror-struck on finding they put a bullet through the head of a member of their own household. In a burglar-infected City like New-York, a revolver is a very convenient piece of furniture to have in the house; but, like spirit lamps, and other explosive means of illumination, unless it can be handled by discreet hands and with proper care, it will be much more prudent to run the risk of being robbed, and trust to the Police for protection.

THE CUMBERLAND COAL COMPANY'S CASE.—In THE TIMES of Jan. 18, in the course of an article upon the careless and dishonest manner in which the affairs of our moneyed corporations are conducted, we referred, by way of illustration, to some developments then lately made of the dealings of Mr. SHERMAN in the affairs of the Cumberland Coal Company. Mr. SHERMAN thought it expedient to bring a libel suit against the proprietors of THE TIMES for the article in question, laying the damages done to his character thereby at $50,000.

Meantime, the counsel of the Cumberland Coal Company have moved upon their complaint for an injunction restraining Mr. SHERMAN and his corporation of straw—the Hoffman Post Office—from [illegible] upon the character of defendant and additional officials on their behalf. The decision of the Court will enable our readers to judge, in some degree, how far our comments upon the case were justified.

Mr. Justice DAVIES in his opinion declines to discuss the question whether actual fraud was intended by SHERMAN & Co. in their dealings with the Company, and rests his decision granting the injunction upon the higher and stronger ground that such dealings as are alleged in the complaint and admitted by the answer are in and of themselves illegal and void, whatever may be the actual motive or intent. A purchase of corporate property by a director intrusted with the duty or responsibility of making the sale, is a thing so contrary to public policy, and so dangerous to the just administration of trusts, that the law will not permit the double-dealing director to sustain his bargain even by proof of actual personal good faith. Whatever his purpose was, he must disgorge. This is in brief the view taken by the Court of such dealings as are admitted by the answer of Mr. SHERMAN.

The opinion of Mr. Justice DAVIES is able and learned; and is sustained by that full and elaborate reference to adjudged precedents, by which his opinions are distinguished. An abstract of it is given in another column, and will repay perusal by all who are interested to see how fully the law protects stockholders against the acts of grasping and speculating trustees.

Honors to Paul Morphy.

It could hardly be expected that this country, never backward to recognize the genius of her children, at least after it has commanded recognition abroad, should overlook the conquest of the world of chess by a young American Alexander. It is true that as the Macedonian hero stopped short of India in his great career, so the young MORPHY, after laying Europe at his feet, is still vaguely defied by an alleged Eastern Ghuddar something, who is published to mankind as the most wonderful living votary of the goddess Caissa. But this new Porus must come to Paris if he wishes to be admitted in the hierarchy of the royal game; and, meanwhile, PAUL MORPHY is virtual Pope.

The New-York Chess Club have determined so to hail him, and at their meeting on Monday night set on foot a subscription for purchasing and presenting to PAUL I. a splendid set of chessmen in silver and gold, now to be seen at Messrs. TIFFANY'S, in Broadway, and originally manufactured for display at the Crystal Palace exhibition. The price at present asked for this magnificent little alley is $1,000, and the Club intend to mount it upon a true "Field of the Cloth of Gold," by providing a board of equal elegance. They will also strike a medal in gold, (more carefully superintending the die, we trust, than was done in the case of the medal so recently issued in honor of PAUL by some enterprising friends of the game,) and they have accepted the offer of the American Watch Company to prepare an elaborate watch of the highest character for the young general, who "takes no note of time" but by the loss of his opponent's games.

The movement is thoroughly legitimate, and does honor to all concerned in it.

THE REVEREND J. L. HATCH.—The Tribune has apparently thrown out a dog-net for scurrilous personal abuse of the Editor of the TIMES. Its latest catch is an advertisement of the very Reverend J. L. HATCH, which it has fished up from the congenial columns of the Herald and displayed in full for the edification of its readers. We hope they enjoy reading these libels as much as the editor of the Tribune enjoys publishing them. Mr. HATCH complains that we refused to publish something sent to us to prove that he is still a member of Dr. CHEEVER'S Church in good and regular standing. Mr. H. has never yet succeeded in telling the whole truth in any attempt we have ever known him make;—it is not at all singular, therefore, that in this instance he should suppress the reason we gave him for not publishing the article in question,—namely, that he had threatened us with libel suits and other enormities as a means of compelling compliance with his wishes. He was told that he must take his choice between law and letters,—but that we could not indulge him in the luxury of both. If he will now only fulfil his long-standing menaces and give us a chance in Court to show his real clerical standing and position to the public at large, he will leave us nothing further to desire. As he seems anxious, however, to have this point in his case understood, we will add that he is still a member of Dr. CHEEVER'S Church, simply because the Church in Brooklyn to which he applied declined to receive him.

The Revolution in Hayti.

By several arrivals at the Eastward, we have dates from Port-au-Prince to Jan. 9, from Aux-Cayes to the 6th, Gonaives to the 12th, and Cape Haytien to the 14th.

The British brig Spider at Holmes' Hole, from Port-au-Prince, on the 5th, reports that at that date the two armies, commanded respectively by the Emperor FAUSTIN, and Gen. GEFFRARD, are only three miles apart, and that intelligence of a battle was momentarily expected. Gen. GEFFRARD, according to this representation, had 6,000 men, while Soulouque had but 3,000. The brig Monticello, at Turpentin Cove, from Port-au-Prince, Jan. 9, reports that not many collisions had taken place up to the time of his sailing. Soulouque had advanced as far as Mare with his army, and it was suspected he would march upon St. Marc's shortly. An engagement had taken place previously, but there was no reliable information as to who was victor. There were about forty wounded in Port-au-Prince of the Emperor's troops. The people in Port-au-Prince appear all in favor of Geffrard. The South apparently stands neutral. The Emperor had made a call for arms, but could not raise a hundred men. It was said in Port-au-Prince that Aux-Cayes and Jacmel had rose in favor of GEFFRARD, but the information was not thought reliable. The Emperor's forces do not exceed 3,000 men, and it is the opinion that Gen. GEFFRARD will succeed.

Business at Jeremie was nearly suspended, also at Port-au-Prince, on account of there being an embargo on all coasting vessels.

The brig Eclaz, which left Gonaives on the 12th, arrived at Turpentin Cove on the 21st. The Captain ports that Gonaives, up to the 12th inst., when he sailed, was quiet. On the 7th there was a slight bombardment of the port of St. Marc's, by a brig-of-war belonging to the Emperor; there were but a few rounds discharged; the brig not being near enough to do execution, the shot took no effect. About the same time there was a slight skirmish back of St. Marc's; some few lives lost and a few houses; both parties then retired. The business at the port seems to be at a stand. General GEFFRARD is posted within 40 yards of the Emperor's forces, divided by a small morass. The inhabitants of Gonaives are all in arms, ready to meet the result. The principal parts of the island have proclaimed Hayti a Republic, and the general opinion is that things will soon be settled in General GEFFRARD'S favor.

The revolution had spread to Aux Cayes, and General —— started from Aux Cayes about the 20th December for the seat of war, Port-au-Prince, with about 4,000 troops to join the Emperor, Soulouque. The masses on the north side of the Island, about Aux Cayes, appeared to be in favor of General GEFFRARD.

The commander of the schooner Marie L. Dover, from Cape Haytien, Jan. 14, states that he could not gain any definite information in regard to the revolution. Had not heard of any battles. The inhabitants were daily expecting to hear of an engagement, and seemed to be generally believers of GEFFRARD, though not openly. Business dull owing to the revolution, which had spread all over the island.

BOSTON, THURSDAY, Feb. 1.

PALMER'S News Room has additional advices from Hayti, received by brig Monticello, at Turpentin Cove, from Port-au-Prince, 9th inst. But few outlines had taken place then for between the imperial troops and the insurgents. Soulouque had advanced as far as Mare, and was maintaining a march upon St. Marc. A conflict had taken place between [illegible]
